will not be found practicable everywhere; but that does not prove them practicable nowhere. Indeed, none have been admitted which have not approved themselves either in the author's own experience or in that of some of his brethren. To such pastors as find the clerical profession an easy one the following discussion will appear absurd, for it implies absolute absorption of mind in the aggressive work of the church and unceasing toil by day and by night. The lazy minister who reverses the law of the Sabbath, working one day and resting six, has no use for this volume. These pages take for granted that the pastor is a hard worker who spares himself only that he may work harder in the future. Fire blazes from heaven, and a stone altar erupts in flame. So begins a spiritual awakening, the kindling of a revival fire still burning today. Beginning with Elijah and God's tremendous one-day revival of Israel, Wesley Duewel tells stories of revivals spanning the globe from America to China to Africa, all brought by obedience and heartfelt prayer. He illustrates how God has used revival fire through the centuries to revive the church and reveal the glorious presence of the Holy Spirit. Excerpt from May We Hope for a Great Revival? Within the last twelve months the Church of Christ in America has been visited with an extraordinary quickening. For once the embankments by which religious matter is shut out from the channels of secular intelligence were broken in; and even daily papers teemed with accounts of revivals and conversions. This great event has not been without its effect upon ourselves. Aspirations after a similar work of grace which existed before have been awakened afresh. On every hand good men may be heard asking one another, May we hope for a great revival? Some, it is true, not less desirous of the extension of Christ's kingdom than others, shrink from the idea of a revival, lest it should be attended with extravagance, and bring forth none but ephemeral fruits. Some months ago two Ministers of the Gospel met on the top of an omnibus within a few miles of this city. Their conversation soon turned upon the remarkable news weekly coming from the religious bodies of America; and one of them expressed a hope that we might witness something similar amongst ourselves. The other replied, I have no faith in revivals; they do not leave any permanent results. Many years ago in the city of E I witnessed what appeared for the time to be a very powerful revival, but in a little while all the fruit of it had passed away. In the city of E re joined his friend. Several years ago, - was it about the time of the first visitation of the cholera? He learned that it was. And all the fruits disappeared? Completely, was the reply. It's strange, he said, that in a distant mission field I knew two Missionaries, both of whom had been converted in that revival. This is the long-awaited reprint of Percy Cerutti's seminal book on athletic training: 'Middle Distance Running' in which he outlines his ideas for the development of strength, stamina, technique and personality. delighted to be bringing Percy Cerutti's coaching ideas to a new audience. This book is packed full of information for the aspiring middle distance athlete. Percy Cerutti was Australia's world-renowned coach in the 1960s. He was coach to arguably Australia's greatest middle distance runner - and possibly the most esteemed middle distance runner of all time - Herb Elliott. In a recent media interview, Herb Elliott said of his coach: Percy grew to be, in my view, the greatest middle distance coach in the world through his own hardships in his life. .... People say, you know, "You were naturally gifted and so you would have been just as good without Percy." And they can say that if they wish - I know that I wouldn't have been as good without Percy. In every era the church needs revival—certainly today as much as ever. And in the heart of every committed Christian there is the longing for personal revival—to know the quality and depths of spiritual reality, and the presence of God in one's personal life. This was the deepest desire of Dr. Martyn Lloyd-Jones, one of the great 20th-century Bible expositors. It was also the purpose behind this series of messages which were first given on the 100th anniversary of the Great Revival which started in Wales, and swept across England and throughout the United States and to the far corners of the world. As Dr. Lloyd-Jones recognized, it is a rare time in the history of the church when there is a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit— and a time of special interest of every Christian who longs for revival today. As Dr. J. I.

Packer writes in his foreword, Dr. Lloyd-Jones believed in "the necessity of revival—that is, a quickening divine visitation—as the only vent that can avert ultimate spiritual disaster. The thrustful urgency of the sermons in this book testifies to the depth of his conviction that without revival in the church there is really no hope for the Western world at all." Dr. Lloyd-Jones deftly draws principles from the lives of Old and New Testament characters as well as expounding some of the great prayers of the Bible. Clearly and forcefully, he presents a masterful exposition of the circumstances accompanying revival in the past, why each generation needs it, and how it will come about today. We must come to the sovereign God, forsake our sin, and wait upon Him for this special, essential outpouring. God, bring us revival! Excerpt from David and His Friends: A Series of Revival Sermons The sermons contained in this volume were all preached in revival meetings held in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Cleveland, Ohio, during the month of January, 1900. The themes had been selected long before and some thought and time had been expended on them at intervals during the year, but they were finally forged in the heat of battle and were dictated to my stenographer daily as the meetings proceeded. At the time of their delivery they were greatly blessed of God in the awakening of sinners and in leading to conversion and I hope and pray that as they now go forth on the printed page the Holy Spirit may continue with them and make them an inspiration

As the young pastor of a self-satisfied English congregation in the 1880s, Samuel Chadwick was so frustrated over his lack of power in the pulpit that he collected his sermons in a pile and set fire to them. The result was immediate: The Holy Spirit fell on him. Excerpt from The Revival Manual Infidelity assumes a variety of forms but in none is it more successful and more fatal, than when it appears robed in livery stolen from the Sanctuary, and goes forth as the friend and advocate of religion, and assumes to steady and guide the ark of God. In this form, and with these pretensions, many who design to be honest Christians, are deceived by it, and unsuspectingly embrace its errors, for the teachings of Christianity, who, should they meet it undisguised, would shun it as they would the hissing serpent. So far as the influences that emanate from unsanctified hearts is allowed to dictate the language of the pulpit, and direct the exercises of the sanctuary, it will constrain the one to speak such smooth things as will startle none from their own carnal repose, and mould the other into a form which will secure the friendship and support of an unrenewed world. In no one instance has this been more strikingly illustrated than on the subject of conversion and the means to be employed to procure conversions. New Zealand has a remarkable maritime history and many of us have a close relationship with the sea that surrounds us. No sooner had the first European settlers arrived in Auckland than they held a regatta to celebrate, and the first pure racing/pleasure yachts were built from the 1880s onwards, by the famous houses of Logan and Bailey. More than 100 years later, many of these masterpieces are still going strong, and their remarkable life stories of success, neglect and restoration tell a story of New Zealand's history. Renowned yachting writer and photographer Ivor Wilkins, showcases the leading lights of the recent classic yacht revival movement: big names such as Waitangi, Rainbow and Ariki, treasures such as Little Jim and Rona, and the classic dinghies and launches which dot our coast. It is a tribute both to the original builders of these magnificent craft but also to their current owners and restorers, who have gone to what might seem incomprehensible lengths to bring them back to their former glory and return them to home waters. Lavishly illustrated with contemporary and historic photographs, this book tells the fascinating stories of these boats and at the same time tells a story of New Zealand's own history. Excerpt from Christ and His Friends: A Series of Revival Sermons The sermons in this volume were delivered in Hanson Place M. E. Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., during the month of January, 1895, in a series of revival meetings. It will be noted that the texts and themes are all selected from St. John's Gospel. The themes were selected some months prior to the delivery of the discourses, and such time as could be spared from the regular work of my ministry was devoted to the work of outline, Scriptural study, and the gathering of illustrative material from all sources open to me. When the time arrived, after a few hours' study during the morning of the day in which the sermon was to be delivered, it was first dictated to a stenographer, though it was afterward in the evening preached without notes. The entire thirty-one sermons were thus at last forged and delivered during that earnest campaign. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. I had not decided at that time to go around the world. The decision was made shortly afterwards. In looking over the book since my return home, I have been surprised to see how closely we have followed the lines of action suggested in this book, and have been rejoiced to see how God has set His seal upon the principles enunciated in the book. At the time that the book was given to the public, the editor was known more as a Bible teacher and as a pastor than as an evangelist. His evangelistic activity had been largely confined to those churches of which he himself was pastor. Since the publication of the book, God has seen fit to lead him out into the evangelistic field and he has had the privilege of applying on a very wide scale the principles which he enunciates in the book and he has found that these principles work successfully, even beyond his own anticipation. Though in autumn death comes to field and forest, with the next spring-time comes new life. Barren branches bear leaf and blossom again. The seed dropped into the soil dies, but dies that it may live in other seed-bearing forms. The robin's song ceases among the branches, but after the silence of winter with the buds come the birds. The fall of the year finds no bleating lamb in the meadow, but when the tender grass sprouts "the little white sheeplets" rest and rollic in it.
